CT ENGINEERING AND M.TORRES SELECTED BY Cre100do TO DRIVE THEIR GROWTH

- The suppliers of AIRBUS, CT Engineering and M.Torres, are among the first 15 companies to be chosen for the 2015 launch of the Cre100do program, an initiative promoted by the Innovation Foundation of Bankinter, ICEX (The Spanish Institute for Foreign Trade) and the “Círculo de Empresarios” Business Group.

Madrid – Spain, 28th of November 2014.

The Cre100do project, an initiative promoted by the Bankinter Foundation, ICEX (The Spanish Institute for Foreign Trade) and the “Círculo de Empresarios” Business Group, to aid the growth of Spanish companies, has selected two Airbus suppliers, CT Engineering Group and M. Torres.

These companies, together with the rest of those selected, are the “Hidden Champions” of the Spanish economy, as they were defined yesterday and include: Bimba y Lola, bq, Cristian Lay, DanobatGroup, El Ganso, Eurofragance, Industrial Farmacéutica Cantabria, Chocolates Lacasa, Megalab, Nagares, Noel Alimentaria, Prosol and Salto Systems.

Cre100do arose out of the need for the Spanish economy to have a greater number of large companies. Large companies are more international, more productive, more innovative, generate more stable employment and their successes have a multiplying effect within the country.

The program Director of Cre100do, Carlos Mira, has explained that over the next five years they will follow these chosen companies, helping them to evaluate their potential, explore business opportunities and organise collaborations with other multinational companies.

Jesús Prieto, CEO of CT Engineering Group said: “We are very excited by the initiative of Cre100do. As an organisation, in a continual process of improvement, we are certain that the knowledge of other experts will help us expand and grow further.”
